I've decided to share a personal channeling with you all, as I think many are experiencing some of the same energies at this time. It is my hope that you will take this as an opportunity to also share yourself with the world...as we are all truly one and we do need one another!

My blessings and love with you all!

Divine Mother message for Sol'Ara An regarding - True Love

February 15, 2009

Dear Divine Mother, will you channel a reading or information you have about what I am going through in regard to wanting true love. I am grateful now for your blessings and your message to me.

Dear one, it is good to hear from you again and know that you are willing to allow us to speak to you. It is not as dire a situation as you would think. And yes, you are not doing anything wrong and you are walking the path of healing that is correct for you. It is a time where you are asked to trust your inner being, your High Self/OverSoul as who you are in wholeness is always assisting you... even when you think she is not. Your path is to the ultimate of Divine Love. It is to find that place within you that is open and free and allows Love to come to you and go from you in freedom. Divine Love is a very powerful energy dear child, it is not something that just is... in the human. You must allow this energy to come to you and to play out the intricate integration into your human self and find the place within you that will release the resistance to this power love.

Many times you have tried to allow this healing to take place with your male side and have done well, but still the layers are peeling back and you are happily at the bottom layer now. This layer is most difficult for humans as it is the "bottom of the barrel" and as such has been there for many lifetimes. It's old and soggy and smells and is not something you want to hold onto. Right?! So in order to release this into love, you actually have to come to terms with your dark side that has created this energy that blocks you from releasing resentment of older days... ancient days we might add. Being a human means you as a Soul are willing to come into the Earth playground, if you will, and play the part your Soul needs in order to grow in a certain direction. Some roles are light and some are dark. It would make sense, would it not, that you would need a balanced education? Thus in this life experience you would not only play one side of the game.

It is difficult for you and others of your species to accept the dark side when they strive so fervently for the light. Setting up shop even... as a "Lightworker" places you in an unsteady position to say the least. Where indeed is the balance? The term "Lightworker" displays only one side of the coin. Then when you experience the dark side, and you will if you are human, you resist that side and cause a wall to be placed between the "true you" and the role you play. You see the "true you" is whole and plays the part of the highest knowing and sometimes there is this old energy to be dealt with which is from the darker side of things. If you do not accept that dark side, you deny a part of yourself and it causes dis-ease. So it is a good and healthy way to be, to accept that you are not always happy, not always doing things for others... sometimes the ego causes you to feel fear... but also you must know that in those moments you have the greatest opportunity to heal those "fears" and negative beliefs and emotions by choosing to love them, and look at them from your truth. Are they who you are in your wholeness? And let them release back into the love of Source/Creator. It is in the accepting of these dark energies within you that actually allows them to release into Love and bring union within yourself, thus allowing wholeness of your entire self into your human life experience.

True love is a desire that all humans would have if they truly got to the bottom issue of allowing love to be as it was meant to be. But so many today close down once they've experienced any hurt and they decide it is not worth the pain. Being willing to feel the pain... this is what allows the true love to be possible in your human experience. Fear stops all love from flowing through you. But you are love, and that shall always be true, and so it will always be there waiting. It's up to you how much longer you are going to choose to stay closed down... thinking you are avoiding the pain. Willingness to release fear, to allow Love in its highest form to flow through and to you is the mark of a very open hearted consciousness. Your time is now. What are you waiting for? Is not the pain you suffer by telling yourself you are not worthy enough already? Is it not enough to believe that my love for you would never stop you from experiencing your greatest happiness? You must look at your beliefs my dear one, and choose your truth carefully. My love offers you all love in its many and varied forms. If you feel true love in your heart, why would it elude you?

Thank you, Divine Mother. I see your point clearly. But, I have to ask... what if the dream of true love is so intense within... but everything you read and hear from others say it is not possible for you? What can I do to know it is possible no matter what others say? How do we hold our truth amongst so many who would have us believe we are not worthy for one reason or another?

Well, that is the work isn't it! Believing in yourself no matter what you hear or see around you. Would you believe that your Divine Mother... or God does not love you for a certain reason? Would you believe that you are less than others because you are blonde or brunette or have green eyes but everyone else has brown eyes? What truth is for you? What is your truth? Dreams are found to come true for those who truly believe in their dreams, who move forward and take action toward their dreams regardless of the outcome that may occur. It is the dream... not the destination that matters! And only you know your own truth. This is what causes you and others also who believe they must follow this society's so called rules of life... "how things are suppose to be"... "what true beauty is"... based on prejudice and control for power. What is that? Why... ask yourself why you would believe that anything or anyone is less beautiful than another? Why anyone else would be wiser when it comes to what you know is love in your own inner heart? What could possibly be less than when ALL are created by their God? And all are part of their God! It is silly really to think in terms of what someone else believes...but we understand this silliness is learned. Dear one you must learn to laugh at yourself more, and realize that it's all about the learning. And you can't learn well if you can't laugh at the experience sometimes! So you see, we judge you not, but simply give you some questions so that you might make better sense of the direction your thoughts are taking you. Yes, your thoughts are the problem here. It is your heart that speaks the loudest to you, and letting negative thoughts of what others say or what you see or read in your world takes you away from your truth. Listen to your heart and flow from your heart...live from your hearts truth and you shall know your Joy!

Joy is the final destination in this life. This was why you came - to find your Joy! For you knew that once you found your joy, you will have found your love within and that would connect you back to your true self and to your true home... once again! This is the journey to Love... through joy. You are on that "last leg" of the journey if you will... we never said it would be easy... but you could make it more fun if you chose to see it as the way home... and laugh instead of cry through your challenges. Laughter heals all, and that is the best message we can give you today dear one... just laugh and have fun with all that you do ... and know that this is the joy that you find missing in your life today.

Welcome this new year, and know that the energy of partnership is very strong. This is the energy of not only the inner partnership, but too the opportunity for many to finally experience the partnership with their twin flames or soul mates if you will. It has come to a time of great awakening, and in this awakening many Souls chose to come back into relationship with their Twin Flames and Soul Mates to have that love that has up until now be unrequited in many lifetime experiences. And so I offer you this knowing so that your dream can be more clearly understood. If you had not made this contract for this life, it would not pull on you so strongly. The block many will come to is the wall they have kept up for many lifetimes from the pain of past loss. This is the loss that, at the time, was necessary to bring you into your wholeness. Learning to depend on you... is strength, but then learning to work together within a loving cooperative partnership makes this strength even more. As true love is the Gold made from the ether... the alchemy of Love. And so perhaps you can take this message as your own acknowledgement that you are due your true love now. Release the walls of fear, absolve yourself of all past life experiences that block love, and open the door to your heart. He will hear you and he will come to you!

What will occur in new relationship is a powerful and energizing love that shall not only heal each partner, but know this, all who choose to participate in this type of partnership with Twin Flame or Soul Mate shall actually allow that energy to heal the entire planet of humanity and all life upon her. And so when we say it is time for this... True Love... it is for the work of the many. And thus your willingness to participate and to clear the road for your own inner connection to take place will help all others who too shall find this energy come up for them. Be strong dear one, it is always the ones of your nature, the romantic ones, to lead the way for the many that may have lost the part of themselves that believes in the highest love... even that of which you term the mystical way's of life. These will return as they must. Humanity's evolvment is through the willingness to see other than what is in front of them, to release the staunch belief that what you see is what is real... this is changing. Being part of the change is being willing to have the courage to move forward with your dreams. What shall you choose my beloved daughter? Choose wisely, for all of you that choose this true love dream shall pave the way for the "new" reality based on Divine Love in all of its varied forms. Then you shall all know great joy!

I leave you with this thought beloved - What is more painful... full acceptance of your beauty and your worthiness to be loved completely and unconditionally... or.... to stay closed and believe in the lie? I think you know. I give you my blessing and my blessing to all of my beloved daughters and sons of Earth for the great awakening to true love... Divine Love... Now!

My blessings and love enfold you daughter!
