Activating Our Intuitive Nature: Agape Welcomes Hans Christian King

by Beth Davis

For two weekends in September, the Agape International Spiritual Center will welcome internationally acclaimed psychic medium, Hans Christian King for “Developing Your Connection with God and Spirit,” an intuitive development class designed to help individuals be comfortable with calling upon Spirit and accessing their true self in order to guide them through any situation.

According to King, many people are walking and living in a space of what they don’t want to do. The class will show those individuals that there is a resource on the other side if they are willing to join with it. “We show you that you already are somebody and guide you to a life of no fear and no stress,” he says.

The class will help participants fine tune their senses to be aware of what Spirit is saying to them and the unique way in which each person may receive the message. It will also show how to incorporate the different modalities into everyday life and how to truly let Spirit be one’s guide.

“We live in a time of constant mind chatter that piles our mind so full of untruths that it is difficult to see our way clearly,” explains King. “Because our minds are so busy, Spirit cannot get through. We teach you breathing exercises and mindfulness training to quiet the mental chatter and be open to receiving information.”

King believes that inherent in every living being is a natural ability to communicate with what some call God, or Spirit. He says it is through the development of one’s intuitive nature that their life can improve dramatically.

The intuitive development classes are the foundation of what King offers his students. Through practical, hands-on experience, each student will have plenty of time to get comfortable with multiple exercises designed specifically to familiarize themselves with various learning modalities.

“People often believe the dynamics of what they have created—they feel lost,” says King. “I want people to know they have another resource and that we all have the power of being great.”

The first weekend of the course will take place September 9-10 and the second weekend is September 23-24. The cost is $275 (early bird price) or $310 the day of the class. The Agape International Spiritual Center is located at 5700 Buckingham Parkway in Culver City. For more info or to make reservations, call 310-348-1250 or visit UTSLA.com.
