

Aztec Announces Another Successful Marble Falls Completion in Palo Pinto County, Texas

HOUSTON, March 25, 2010 -- Aztec Oil & Gas, Inc. (Pink Sheets: AZGS) announced today a second successful completion in the Marble Falls Formation in Palo Pinto County. Aztec has partnered with G & F Oil in developing low risk, multi formation shallow wells in and around Palo Pinto and Jones Counties as one of several Aztec areas of focus in Texas.

“Aztec again is duplicating their blue print for success by teaming up with local operators in an area where the local operator has been drilling and producing profitably for years. Aztec is successfully exploiting one of the earliest forms of the energy business, shallow vertical oil wells,” stated Waylan Johnson, President of Aztec.

Aztec has contracted to drill two more wells in Jones and Palo Pinto County beginning immediately, and holds approximately 45% Working Interest in both of these latest two new projects. Drilling shallow wells in North Central Texas with multiple, proven target zones allows Aztec to anticipate and schedule toward our 5-7 year exit strategy when we suggest divestiture of the properties to our investors.

“Being able to drill these wells and put them into production inexpensively in conjunction with 2-4 proven zones behind pipe allows Aztec to anticipate producing the wells for several years and then, through the sale of the proven production and reserves, create the most cash value for our LP investor partners with our sophisticated Exit Strategy,” added Mr. Johnson.

Aztec has ongoing negotiations for several properties in the North Central Texas area that can add an even more significant amount of locations to our already growing inventory of low risk developmental drilling sites.

About Aztec Oil & Gas, Inc.

Aztec is an oil and gas exploration, development and production company focusing on Texas and numerous areas throughout the U.S. Its interests are highly diversified as exemplified by its direct corporate participation in two productive Deep Lake wells in Cameron Parish, Louisiana ranging from 13,600 feet to 14,300 feet in depth versus its shallow, Texas, low risk, development wells for its drilling programs placed by FINRA registered Broker Dealers and Registered Investment Advisors with accredited investor partners.

In 2006, Aztec entered the sponsored drilling program industry and, over the next two and one half years, undertook three small, very limited annual drilling partnerships. Aztec's personnel were, and are, experienced in oil and gas exploration and production in many parts of the US, including Texas; however, drilling in Appalachia was recommended to Aztec by several broker dealers and a wholesaler. The foregoing was, supposedly, because many broker dealers were more familiar with sponsored drilling programs from the Appalachian area. Aztec intentionally limited its sponsored drilling programs over the subject two and one half years in order to become fully familiar with the nuances of the sponsored drilling program industry before expanding to the Company's full capabilities. In the summer of 2008, due to what Aztec's officers felt was a questionable, future outlook for shallow, non-shale gas in the Appalachian region; Aztec publicly announced it was discontinuing natural gas drilling in Appalachia, and that it was ready to substantially expand its sponsored drilling program activities, primarily in Texas.

Aztec focused all drilling in 2009 in Texas. In addition to the referenced, initial three small Appalachian drilling partnerships; Aztec has sponsored and closed its VIII A, VIII B and VIII C drilling partnerships. The seventh drilling partnership, Aztec X A Oil & Gas LP, closed in December 2009, and also focuses on drilling in Texas. Aztec Energy LLC, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Aztec, acts as Managing General Partner of all Aztec drilling partnerships and another wholly-owned Aztec subsidiary, Aztec Drilling & Operating, LLC, is the turnkey drilling contractor and operator for such partnerships. Aztec owns a 30% interest in all of its drilling partnerships through its own contributions. In general clarification of its activities, Aztec sponsors low risk, development drilling programs which include significant tax benefits, all of which are sold through FINRA Registered Broker Dealers and Registered Investment Advisors to Accredited Investors. Aztec's drilling programs focus primarily on shallow oil drilling, are very unique, and also incorporate a sophisticated Exit Strategy for investors.
