Background & Experience

Brian Leet is an independent representative of disability insurance with direct access to the industry's leading carriers. Brian started in the disability insurance industry in 2001 on the carrier side at Standard Insurance. While there, Brian held multiple positions that helped contribute to his understanding of the disability insurance marketplace. His responsibilities included serving on product development teams, national accounts and head of sales & marketing working directly with financial advisors in the institutional space. He also spent time as their competition specialist where he first grasped how the various carriers compare/contrast to one another. This serves him well in his current role as an independent disability insurance product specialist. In 2012, Brian joined Pacific Advisors, one of the industry's leaders in disability insurance. Since joining, he has worked extensively with financial advisors and their clients by providing point of sale assistance, case design and product expertise.

Brian lives just outside of Portland (Oregon) with his wife Angela. They have a daughter (Alex) and son (Miles) who are both in elementary school.
