Christian Marsella is a twenty year plus veteran in the financial services industry, the majority of which he spent helping financial advisors meet the needs of their high net worth clients and business owners. Christian consults and collaborates with advisors and their clients to bring solutions to put the client in the best position possible to succeed. These solutions address retirement, estate planning, business planning and long-term care needs.

Christian earned a Masters' degree in International Accounting and Finance from the London School of Economics. He also holds FINRA Series 7, Series 24 and Series 63 licenses. Christian is a member of Beta Gamma Sigma – International Business Honor Society. He enjoys fitness/cross training, volunteering, Trojan football and time with family. He lives in Los Angeles with his son, Cruz.
