Yesterday the TRIN closed at 1.20 and today at 1.32 which adds up to 2.52; two day readings that add up to 3.00 and higher appear near short term lows. The tick closed yesterday at +60 and today at +100 and not at panic levels. The two day trin leans bullish but not at levels where reliable bottoms are formed and the tick are just neutral. Market bottoms form on panic and so far readings in the trin and tick are not reaching levels where panic is present to the degree of what we like to see. Today's volume increased from yesterday's volume and suggests tomorrow could be another down day. If market is down tomorrow maybe the trin and tick readings reach panic levels and setup a bullish signal. Staying neutral for now. Join us on twitter. @OrdOracle

We shown this chart is the past which is updated to current data. Above is the American Association of individual Investors Bull Bear Ratio. Bullish intermediate term signal are triggered when this ratio falls below .75 and current reading is .69. This ratio has been below .75 since late September and since then market has moved sideways. According to this indicator market is building a base near current prices on the SPX. Join us on twitter.

Yesterday we showed a trade setup using the RSI for the Bullish percent index for the Gold miner's index. In a nutshell this method was a bullish setup when the RSI for the Bullish Percent index fell below 10 and then closed above 30; which just occurred. Another intermediate term bullish setup is on the chart above which is the RSI for the Bullish percent index for the Gold Miners index/GDX. A bullish intermediate term low is predicted when the RSI of this ratio falls below 30 and then closes above 30. This setup was also just triggered. The blue vertical lines show the previous signals triggered going back to mid 2014. There could be backing and filling short term but intermediate term the picture appears to have turned bullish.
