Market is in a strong position. The top window is the NYSE up volume minus NYSE down volume. Readings above +800 shows the market is in a strong position. There can be minor pullbacks when this high of a reading is recorded but after the pull back, higher highs is expected. The bottom window is the two day TRIN. Two day TRIN above 1.50 showing there is panic in the market and panic form at bottoms and fuel the next rally. Last Friday the two day TRIN closed at 1.63. Long SPX on 3/24/21 at 3889.14. Yesterday we posted a similar chart to the one above but this chart paints a clearer picture as the lower window shows when the lower Bollinger Band is being touched when it reaches “0” or below. We said yesterday, “The top window is the National association of Active Investment Mangers (NAAIM) with Bollinger bands. Worthwhile lows have formed in the SPX when the NAAIM touched in lower Bollinger Band. This chart goes back to mid 2016 and the red lines show when the NAAIM touched its lower Bollinger Band. A touch did occur last week suggesting an intermediate term low was near. Previous signals have lasted several months. This is a sentiment indicator and the mood is set for an extended rally.” Join us on twitter. @OrdOracle

We updated this chart from yesterday, we said yesterday, “The colorfully chart above is GDX (middle window) along with GDX/GLD (top window). The bottom two indicators are 18 day average of the Advance/Decline and next window up is the 18 day average of the Up Down volume. The light blue sections show when both indicators are above “0” and the light pink show when there are below “0”. When above “0” is when the market is trending higher and as long as both stay above “0” the trend should continue higher. As you can see both indicators are above “0” suggesting the short term trend up. The top window is the GDX/GLD ratio which a lot of the time leads GDX and it appears it has closed above its downtrend line going back to the August high suggesting a breakout. Evidence is coming in that the early March low was the bottom.” Today’s GDX trading closed above it downtrend line suggesting a breakout as GDX/GLD breakout suggested yesterday. Long GDX (10/9/20 at 40.78).
